LLOYD-GEORGE SEES VICTORY

British War Minister Says Allies Have Taken Initiative

EXPRESSES OPTIMISM

Premier Asquith Announces in House of Commons That West Offensive Has Just Started

London, July 14—David Lloyd George, British Minister of War presiding yesterday at an Entente allied conference on equipment, declared that the combined offensive of the allies had wrenched the initiative from the Germans never, he trusted, to return.

"We have crossed the watershed," he said, and now victory is beginning to flow in our direction. This change is due to the improvement in our equipment."

"Since our last munitions conference," said Mr. Lloyd-George, "there has been a considerable change in the fortunes of the Allies. On that date the great Champagne offensive in the west had just failed to attain its objective, and the French and British armies had sustained heavy losses without the achievement of any particular success. In the east the enemy had pressed the gallant armies of Russia back some hundred miles, and the Balkans had just been overrun by the Central Powers.

"The overwhelming victories won by the valiant soldiers of Russia have struck terror into the hearts of our foes, and these, coupled with the immortal defense of Verdun by our indomitable French comrades and the brave resistance of the Italians against overwhelming odds in the Southern Alps have changed the whole compjlexion of the landscape.

"Now, the combined offensive in the east and west has wrenched the initiative out of the hands of the enemy—never, I trust, to return to his grasp. We have crossed the watershed and now victory is beginning to flow in our direction.

"Why have our prospects improved? The answer is the equipment of our armies has improved enormously and is continuing to improve.

"I cannot help thinking that improvement in the Russian ammunition has been one of the greatest and most unpleasant surprises the enemy has sustained. Still our task is but half accomplished. Every great battle furnishes additional proof that this is a war of equipment. More ammunition means more victories and fewer casualties."

The allied offensive on the western front is only in its beginning, declared Premier Asquith yesterday in announcing in the House of Commons that the Government had decided to ask workers to forego their August holidays because of the demand for munitions in France.

"That. offensive," he continued, "is only in its beginning and it necessarily requires for its success a continuous supply of munitions of all kinds. From the success achieved, we have been able to guage the paramount necessity of avoiding even the slightest risk of restriction of the use of munitions in the field, not merely in the weeks immediately before us, but until our objective is achieved. In the opinion of the commander in chief there must be no slackening in the output, even for a moment. I therefore, appeal to the patriotism of the workers and the public generally to again postpone their holidays in order that the attack, so brilliantly begun, can be carried through to a triumphant conclusion."

President Wilson yesterday promised a committee of Confederate veterans, introduced by Representative Hay, of Virginia, that he would attend, if possible, a reunion of veterans at Fisher's Hill, on August 5. He said, however, that he thought his engagements would prevent.

BREAK GROUND TODAY

Worth Hulfish and Mrs. L. Wilbur Reid Wield Spade at New Hospital Site

A program of short and simple ceremonies was conducted at the corner of Duke and Washington streets, this morning at 9 o'clock, when ground was broken for the erection of the new Alexandria Hospital at that site. Present at the grounds of the old Daingerfield residence were members of the board of trustees and the building committee of the new hospital, the lady board of managers, headed by Mrs. L. W. Reid, vice president, a number of the nurses and attending physicians, the contractors, the architect, and others interested in the erection of the new up-to-date structure.

The first spadeful of earth was turned by Worth Hulfish, chairman of the building committee, who immediately turned the implement over to Mrs. Reid, who scooped up the earth that marked the beginning of actual work on the construction of the new edifice.

Remarks were made by Mr. Hulfish and Rev. J. W. Duffey, offered prayer and read selections from the Book of Psalms.

According to the specifications prepared by Waddy B. Wood, the architect, the new hospital will face Duke street, at a distance of about forty feet from the pavement and will extend the length of almost the entire square of Duke street between Columbus and Pendleton streets. The northeastern corner of the structure will adjoin the Daingerfield mansion proper, which, stripped of its entire back wing, and adjoining stable and several small outlying structures, will be used as the headquarters of the hospital authorities, the physicians, and the nursing staff.

Erection of a large modern hospital, which at last gotten under way, has been desired by Alexandria for a number of years past, and about three or four years ago, active work was started in securing the necessary funds for its construction. A canvass lasting several months was made, and the sum of about $40 000 was secured by those in charge of obtaining the subscriptions. The first estimate of the cost was $50,000. Recent estimates of the construction place the cost at about $60,000.

After the forty thousand dollars in subscriptions was received, the matter of the site of the new hospital was a hangfire for a long time, there being a diversity of opinion as to whether or not it was feasible to have the edifice located in a central location of the city or on its outskirts. The two most favored sites were the grounds surrounding the Old Daingerfield house and the square in the northwestern section of the city bounded by Pendleton, Wythe, Alfred and Columbus streets, the latter being finally selected, after which discussion of many months followed as to the specifications the kind of material, and other details of the construction and erection, and it was while this question was still in an unsettled state, that Edward L. Daingerfield came forward with the donation of his residence without terms to the cause of the new hospital.

After Mr. Daingerfield's munificent gift nearly a year ago the question as to how the hospital should be built was unsettled, and it was not until about two months ago that the trustees finally stamped approval on the plans of the architect, following this action shortly by the awarding of the contract to the firm of Richardson and Burgess, Washington contractors, two weeks ago, ever since which work has been in progress by squads of workmen of the firm in levelling back structures and trees standing as obstacles, and preparing the ground at the northwest corner of Washington and Duke streets for consrtuction of the proposed edifice. Today with the breaking of ground, work on the construction proper started with a rush.

It is too early yet to obtain a definite statement as to the time that will be required for the completion of the work of erecting the new hospital, but it may be confidently assumed that construction will be finished in the early fall and the building be ready for occupancy before the bells of the new year are pealing forth their chimes.

BRITISH BREAK GERMAN LINE

Sweep Over Four-Mile Front Today With a Smashing Blow

GREATEST GAIN YET

Teuton Position at Pozieres, on the Bapaume Front, Rendered Extremerly Critical

London, July 14—British troops brok German line on four mile front at dawn today with a smashing blow that swept the British lines into the village of Longueval and Bazentin-le-Grand and cleared the Trones wood, an advance of more than a mile.

The gain is the greatest scored for the Anglo-French offensive since the opening of the great assault thirteen days ago.

"At dawn, we attacked the enemy' second system of defense," said an official bulletin from General Haig, given out at 11 a. m. "We broke in hostile positions on a four mile front capturing several strongly defended localities. Heavy fighting continues."

Special dispatches from press headquarters at the front announced the capture of Longueval, Bazentin-le-Grand and the clearing of the Trones wood in the early hours of the fighting. The blow was struck at the very sector of the battle front where the Germans had assembled their heaviest bodies of re-enforcements.

The early bulletins, though very meager, indicated that one of the greatest battles of the allied offensive is being waged in the wooded region northeast of Albert.

The British advance apparently was in the direction of Martinpuch Heights and the plateau dominating the road leading to Bapaume, the immediate objective of the British attack. The village of Longueval lies at the intersection of the Bapaume-Bray and Albert-Combles highways, and but seven miles southwest of Bapaume. Bazentin-le-Grand lies immediately east of Contalmaison, whose capture by the British was admitted at Berlin yesterday, and slightly northwest of Trones wood.

The French left wing pushed forward at the same time, according to an unofficial report from Paris, straightening the French line between Hardecourt and Gullemont and threatening the village of Maurepass.

A dispatch filed at Paris at midnight reported that the British had pushed clear through the Mametz wood, where desperate fighting has been going on, to the Longueval road, and were about five hundred yards from the village. The remaining distance was covered with a rush when the offensive wes resumed at daybreak.

The German position at Pozieres, on the Bapaume highway, has been rendered extremely critical by the British advance. Paris reported.

STORM STRIKES NEW YORK.

Four Men Killed by Lightning During the Disturbance.

New York, July 14. — Tropical heat suddenly gave way to a tropical electrical storm yesterday which killed four men. It came after a morning and afternoon of heat that killed eleven others.

From a temperature of 74 at 6 o'clock in the morning the mercury shot up to 88 at noon, and was hovering around that mark when a sixty-mile gale drove the thunder clouds out of the west just before 3. The temperature dropped 17 degrees, while half an inch of rain fell. When the storm was over at 7 in the evening the thermometer stood at 71.

MR. SWANSON'S SPEECH

Virginia Senator Makes Strong Plea For Increased Navy

The need of a great navy to maintain the position of the United States as a world power and to safeguard its commerce and foreign policies was emphasized by Senator Swanson of Virginia in the opening speech in the Senate yesterday on the navy appropriation bill. Senator Swanson insisted that the navy of the United States must be at least second greatest in he world. As ranking member of the committee on naval affairs after Senator Tillman, the chairman, Senator Swanson will have charge of the navy bill on the floor of the Senate.

In a brief address to the Senate, Chairman Tillman urged that the bill be considered and passed with as great speed as possible.

Said Senator Swanson, in part:

"The best defense we can have for our immense lines of coast is a navy. It is impossible to build forts and fortifications that can give adequate protection to our great stretches of coast.

"The necessity for an adequate navy for us is greater today than ever before in our history. The time has passed in the history of the world when any nation can successfully lead an isolated life.

"The unjust restrictions that Great Britain has imposed upon our commerce during the progress of this war further emphasizes to us the necessity of having a navy large enough to demand and enforce our rights. In modern commerce, with its varied trade complexities, the nation that is helpless upon the seas is the prey of all marauders and hos its future destiny directed by others.

"This great war vastly increased our foreign trade and reviving our home industries, has given us wealth almost unspeakable. When this war is concluded this nation will be rich beyond the wildest dream of avarice. If we have naval and military strength we will be able to hold our wealth, power, and pjrestige. If we are weak in this respect the day of our despoilment will inevitably come.

"Are we foolish enough to believe that this nation, which, with its vast wealth and unsurpassed possibilities—the object of envy and jealousy of other nations—can be safe if we permit ourselves to become a fourth or fifth rate naval power? Are we simple-minded enough to risk our national safety to the chances of their mutual jealousies and enmities? Could this restrain each of them when the destruction of our navy would mean the overthrow of the Monroe doctrine and the opening up to them of Central and South America for the purpose of exploitation and spoliation? Has not one of these nations disputed the Monroe doctrine, and only needed a sufficient navy to challenge it? Have we not an aggressive eastern neighbor, who looks with covetous eyes upon our Philippine possessions? Are we weak minded enough to imagine that we can control the Panama canal for our own advantage and profit unless we have a navy sufficient to fully protect it. Are we going to permit the $300,000,000 we expended in this great enterprise to be appropriated by other nations with superior naval strength?

"I believe we are safe under present conditions of the world's affairs if we will become and remain without question the world's second naval power. Our national honor, prestige and safety will not permit of less. If those nations who are competing with us for this position increase their navies, we must equally increase ours. With our vast and varied interest, with our great responsibilities, with the present political complications in the world, we cannot with safety afford to be less than the world's second naval power. If we remain less than this, our vast foreign commercial interest, inseparable from our prosperity, will be jeopardized. Our Philippine possessions will be the prey of superior naval power. Our foreign policies and intercourse will necessarily become timid and vacillating.

"The great affairs of the world affecting our interests will be regulated without consultation with us. We will then become suppliant, pleading for rights instead of boldly and courageously demanding them. It will mean the surrender of our great prestige. It will mean a distinct loss to the world of the great power possessed by this nation for peace, justice, and liberty. The Monroe doctrine would be challenged and our control of the Panama canal disputed. It would mean that this mighty young republic has retreated and has ceased to advance along the pathway that was leading her to a higher and nobler destiny.

"The American Navy has ever been the pride of our people. They have ever felt that it was their surest and safest defense. We gratefully remember now many difficulties and disasters we have averted in the past by our naval successes. Our debt of national gratitude to the navy is great and lasting.

"If this nation is to attain the summit of her possible usefulness and success. Prudence and wisdom demand that this nation should have a greatness, it must come through her navy—its power, its triumph and its great navy properly to perform its responsible duties and successfully to achieve its great work. I rejoice at this nation's proud and glorious past, but I rejoice still more at the cloudless future which beckons us on to a still greater greatness and a richer and deeper glory. With strong arms and brave hearts let us fearlessly face our great and responsible future."

CZAR RENEWS HIS ATTACKS

More Than 2,000 Prisoners And Many Guns Are Captured

DIFFERENT REPORTS

Austrians Said to Be Receiving German Reinforcements to Aid in Checking Drive

London July 14—General Brusiloff renewed his attacks on the right wing of the army of General von Bothmer, whose army is protecting Lemberg from the advancing Russians, according to the Russian statement received today.

The fighting took place west and northwest of Buczacz, on the lower Stript. More than 2,000 prisoners, one gun, and machine guns were taken by the Russians.

The Austrian and German accounts of the fighting in this district differ. The Berlin report says that by an encircling counter attack to the northwest of Buczacz, German troops drove back Russians who had pushed forward. More than 400 prisoners were taken, the German statement says.

The Austrian version is that, while part of the attacking columns of the Russians collapsed under the Austrian fire, other succeeded in penetrating a section of the Austrian position. A speedy counter attack drove the Russians from the positions which they had taken the statement adds.

The Czar's forces apparently are marking time on the Stokhod front, where heavy German artillery and re-enforcements have been drawn up to repell the Russian advance on Kovel. An artillery duel took place yesterday on this front, the Russian statement says. Vienna reports that Russian attacks along the Kovel, Sarny railroad were repulsed.

The campaign in the southwest appears to be awaiting a decision in the struggle before Kovel, where the battles are increasing in intensity. Both sides are throwing more troops into this section, designated the "Lutzk breach," which extends a hundred miles along the Stokhod river.

Already there is said to have been noted the presence there of the Tenth Prussian Corps from Rheims and the Fifth Bavarian from Arras, both newly brought up.

Five persons were killed instantly and fourteen were seriously injured yesterday when a four-story brick building at Macon street and Summer Avenue Brooklyn, were blown to pieces by the explosion in a refrigerating plant run in connection with a butcher shop. A trolley car passing at the time, was lifted shattered and the thirty passengers were dumped into a panic-stricken mass.

ECLIPSE OF THE MOON.

Will be Visible To-Night Shortly After 10 O'clock—Earth Between and Moon.

Beginning shortly after 10 o'clock the moon will to night go into an almost total eclipse. The eclipse will be visible in Alexandria and it will be seen from the Atlantic Ocean, Southwestern Europe, Africa, South America and from all but the extreme western portions of Northern Hemisphere. The moon will pass between the shadow of the earth and the sun, and except for a faint redness, will be darkened. The eclipse will not be noticed except by those who watch, for it, since the darkness will be no more than that occasioned by the passing of clouds between moon and earth.

In olden times, eclipses of sun or moon were thought to bear sinister portent, and on many occasions they have been looked upon as signs of the passing of the World. Science has, however, shown the fanatic his mistake, and the religious enthusiast the futility of his prophecy. The phenomenon, as phenomena go, is but a part of of the working of the universe, the extent of which no man knows. Alarm may be occasioned among the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air by an eclipse of the sun, but man has learned that the shadowing of either of the luminaries is of no more portent than the coming of rain.

Every taxpayer in the State has been put upon notice by Auditor of Public Accounts C. Lee Moore that he may come forward and voluntarily report omissions in State taxes and local levies and thus avoid penalty and interest, which may be inflicted on and after August 1. Auditor Moore yesterday issued a circular to examiners of records and commissioners of the revenue, calling their attention to the law, and directing them to proceed, after August 1st, to carry out the mandatory law requiring them to assess every taxpayer in every district and every circuit for each and every year with property, money and income with which the taxpayers has not been heretofore assessed.

TROOPS WILL NOT BE DEMOBILIZED

Colonel Stimson Telegraphs Senator Martin About Rumor

RECENT COMPLAINTS

Newspaper Articles on Conditions at Camp Stuart Declared Absolutely Groundless

Richmond, July 14—Reports were current in Richmond yesterday, and were later received in Washington, to the effect that the War Department was about to demobilize the Richmond Blues and the First Battalion Virginia Field Aartillery. Senator Martin at once communicated with the War Department, and was informed that nothing was known of the matter there. He was told, however, that General Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, would be advised if any such plan was contemplated. The Senator thereupon telegraphed to General Wood, and late yesterday afternoon received the following reply from Colonel Stimson:

"Referring to yours of July 13, to General Wood, no knowledge here of any plan to demobilize the Richmond Blue and First Battalion, Virginia Field Artillery."

Complaints made against the administration and sanitation of Camp Stuart by Norfolk and Portsmouth newspapers are characterized as absolutely groundless by State military officers, in in the light of the reports of United States Army officers who have inspected the camp.

Within the last few days several attacks have been printed in papers of the eastern part of the State which accuse camp officers of persecution, needless delay, lack of personal care for their men and other maladministration. It is thought that the reports were started by irresponsible gossips, unconfirmed from autoritative sources.

Answers to the charges are numerous. The report of Major Johnson, the Department of the East was very complimentary to the camp and to the officers of the Virginia militia. Major Johnson stated that the troops of this State were ahead of those of any other Southern State, and not inferior to those of the more abundantly provided for Northern States. Colonel Stark, the physical inspector from Fortress Monroe, stated that he had never seen a finer body of men.

Although sanitary conditions at the very first were not of the best, they have been made so by the steady work of the city authorities, aided by officers of the camp. The fact that there has been practically no serious sickness and very little of a minor nature, is proof that both food and location have been healthy.

The burden of the Portsmouth company was over the failure of the Grimes Battery to pass the inspection for mustering into the Federal service.

CASE OF J. REECE CATON

Appeal From Decision of Police Court Considered By Corporation Today

The case of J. Reece Caton, who was recently fined $5 in the Police Court for violating the Sunday law by selling miscellaneous articles on Sunday, came up in the Corporation Court before Judge Barley this morning. Mr. Caton took an appeal from the judgment of the lower court. He is represented by Leo P. Harlow, and Commonwealth's Attorney Samuel G. Brent appears for the state.

The outcome of this case is awaited with interest by other shop keepers in Alexandria, who have heretofore conducted business on Sunday, and the fact that the Supreme Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of a lower court in imposing fines required in cases of the violation of the Sunday laws, makes the outcome of the case of Mr. Caton problematical.

Several other cases of alleged violation of the Sunday law in this city will have their final settlement according to the decision Judge Barley renders in the appeal case of Caton. Justice Thompson has recently fined violators of the same law in police court, with the provision that payment of the fines will not be enforced if the higher court sets aside his decision against Mr. Caton.

Attorney General Pollard has been advised that a test of the so-called Sunday laws is to be taken to the supreme court of appeals—the case of Mike Scher,—convicted of selling cigars, soda water and other such things on Sunday. He was fined in the police court and that fine was affirmed in the Husting court of Richmond.

That the law is plain and that the supreme court has already passed on the principles of the case is known to lawyers, who are familiar with the decisions of the court. Several years ago a charter was obtained by the Hanger Drug Company, of Portsmouth, for the business indicated by its charter. Included in the provisions were the right to sell cigars, cigarettes, soda water and other drinks. The establishment did a big business on Sunday. Reported for violation of the laws, the court imposed a fine and the case finally reached the supreme court of appeals.

Judge Cardwell, now the president of the court, in an opinion expressing the opinion of the court, decided that the sale of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, soda water and other soft drinks on Sunday was a clear and distinct violation of the statutes of the state, thus affirming the decree of the court below. That decision was handed down January 16, 1908, is reported in 107th Virginia Reports.

Has Been Paying out Money for Years He Declares.

"Honestly if I had not gotten this medicine Dreco, I don't believe I could have kept on with my work," said John Herbert who works at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. "It is a fact, I feel like I should tell everybody what it has done for me. For years I've been spending money for stomach trouble and constipation. Lord only knows how much I have spent, and none did much good. My stomach would fill up with gas and pain me something awful no matter how careful I was of my food I was alway troubled with constipation and was taking medicine continually for relief. I kept hearing of the wonderful results others were getting from Dreco so began taking it, and from the very first it helped me. It was quicker than anything I ever took. I've finished two bottles and am almost entirely well. Dreco is one fine medicine."

LAD SENT HOME.

Alexandria Boy of Eight Years Would See World's Wonders.

A runaway boy has been returned to his distracted parents through the instrumentality of two citizens of Quantico.

Last Monday evening, about dusk, Charles P. Jones and Ernest Stevens discovered a lad, eight years old, sitting near the railway tracks at the upper end of the Quantico yards.

The youngster, whose name is Earl Hopper, said that he had decided to run away from his home in Alexandria because his brother and another boy were doing the same thing. The party of three had hidden themselves on a freight train in Alexandria and started out in search of the wonders of the world.

By the time the train reached the Quantico yards they became hungry and jumped off the freight. For a long time they debated what they would do, when suddenly another freight, going north, hove into sight. The other two then decided to go back home, jumped the train, which the little fellow could not do, and he was left alone.

Mr. Stevens took him home for the night and sent him back home. —Quantico Times.

GOSPEL TENT MEETINGS

Evangelist Gibson Discourses Upon the Theme, "Under the Law, or Under Grace."

Evangelist Gibson delivered an interesting talk at the gospel tent last night on "Under the Law or Under Grace."

The speaker made an interesting and practical address on this important subject, during which he made many references to scriptures. He said: "Those who are under the law are sinners, or are those who are transgressors of God's law, or the Ten Commandments. The final result will be death, the second death, which will be the punishment of the wicked."

Continuing the evangelist said: Those who are Christians are they who love God and keep all His commandments, who have been born again and converted. In other words, they are Christ like people. Jesus Christ did not trangress the ten commandments, and committed no sin. We are to follow His example. Such are not under the law, but under grace."

The subject tonight will be "Faith". A cordial invitation is extended all to attend.

BOYS CHARGED WITH THEFT.

Juvenile Offender will be Placed in Homes Outside City.

In police court this morning Roy Draper, 13 years old, and William Posey, 11 years old, charged with stealing an automobile manifold and selling it to Mrs. Jessie Bennett, who keeps a junk shop on lower King street, were both turned over to the custody of parents, the father of the former being directed by Justice Thompson to send the boy from the city, and the mother of the Posey lad charged to keep her son for correction. The two boys were alleged to have stolen the automobile part, worth $17.85, and sold it to the Bennett woman for some small change, but, owing to lack of evidence, the latter could not be convicted of receiving stolen goods, on the scant evidence and was dismissed. Arthur Thomas forfeited collateral by failing to appear, and the case of Brook Adams, charged with letting water run from his premises, into those of a neighbor, was continued.

ATTACKING THE CHANCELLOR

The significance of the repeated attacks from his countrymen upon the German Chancellor is that they reflect popular discontent with the course of the war. The war has not moved according to the German program. The consequent discontent is by no means confined to the Social Democrats; it is evidently widespread and we may infer from the tone of the Chancellor's defense of himself June 6 that it is pretty serious. The Philadelphia Record suggests that this discontent can't vent itself on the Kaiser without incurring the charge of treason. It would be extremely ungracous to vent it upon the military chiefs, who are doing the best they can, and have done wonderful things. There remains the Chancellor.

The Chancellor is not responsible to the Reichstag. Several years ago it voted want of confidence in him but that did not touch his tenure of office. He is only responsible to the Kaiser, and denunciations of the Chancellor ran as near to denuciations of the Kaiser as it is safe to go.

The pamphlet of "Junius Alter." "printed in the strictest confidence and published as manuscript"—whatever that may mean in German law—expresses the feelings of the General Staff. The Chancellor is charged with not letting slip the dogs of war soon enough. He committed the crime of tryng to avert war. He undertook to keep England out of the war. Germany ought to have plunged into the war several days earlier and got a greater advantage of early occupation of foreign territory. As to all this, the general judgment of the world is, and will increasingly be, that the Chancellor was in duty bound to avert war if he could, and that duty to his country demanded that he should limit the enemies of the Germans to two instead of three if it were possible, and that his apology, or excuse for entering Belgium does him credit as indicating that he was not absolutely devoid of international morality.

So far as the German official published correspondence goes, the Chancellor limited his efforts for peace to Petrograd, Paris and London. If he made any efforts for peace in Vienna neither the German nor the Austrian documents show it. But there was the place for peace efforts. Austria was proposing to attack Servia. Evidently Russia would not allow this, and to preserve peace it was necessary to induce Austria to refer its complaints to some sort of conference. Ultimately Austria goth to the point of willingness for this, but by that time the German troops were in Russia and France. Germany got into the war before Austria, though it was Austria's quarrel. The Chancellor's efforts for peace were highly creditable to him—as far as they went. But they ought to have gone to Vienna.

Professor Brandenburg's attack is based on the charge that the Chancellor will not tell Germany just how far he is determined to fight, and what amount of conquests will satisfy him. But for more than six months the Chancellor has from time to time been inviting the allies to come in and accept peace on the basis of the "war map." They have not shown the slightest disposition to do anything of the sort. They manifest a determination to draw a different map before they will talk peace. We do not see what more the Chancellor can do. He is willing enough to stop where he is, but the allies won't stop. We see nothing in the professor's complaints except a very natural disappointment that the war isn't over, with Servia annexed to Austria, Belgium and much of France and Russia annexed to Germany, and the Castle of Julius bursting with the gold indemnity paid by abject Russia, England and France. Of course this is disappointing, but it is not the fault specifically of von Bethmann-Hollweg.

LOVE OF THE MARVELOUS

People living in the twentieth century long ago assumed that haunted houses and witches were among the things of the past, but ocasionally some one appears and makes positive statements concerning the marvelous, which many prefer to believe.

Many years ago Robert Dale Owens wrote a book entitled "Footfalls upon the Boundary of the Anothor World" Owens tells many marvelous things and he having been a Congressman and at one time Minister from the United States to Italy, his opinion carried some weight in his day.

Bulwer's book, "The Man and the Brain," while fiction, has been read by many who preferred to regard the description of his adventures in a haunted house in London as a fact.

About a third of a century ago a book was published somewhere in New Foundland entitled "The Great Amherst Mystery." This was alleged to have been a true history of supernatural occurrences in a certain house, as well as the experiences of members of a certain household. The book abounded in affidavits from those who figured in the recitals.

Most people have long been inclined to smile at ghost stories as ridiculous from the fact that no such occurrences as were described a century ago arewitnessed now. The ancient Greeks believed the Minotaur inhabited the island of Crete, and when navigation became common their mariners were surprised when they found Crete was similar to other places and no nondescripts were found in the place.

The latest ghost story comes from Indiana.

The haunted rectory of Elkhart is to be razed. This building the property of St. John's Episcopal Church is in good condition, but has been unused for years. The strange stories told by many persons who have stayed all night in it have frightened all occupants away. Now, although they do not admit it is haunted, the vestrymen have decided to tear it down.

The last occupant was Rev. W. W. Daup and wife. Mrs. Daup was driven almost to nervous prostration by the stalking of the alleged ghost. So severely shaken was her nervous system that the belief that a ghost really haunted the house became general, and no one could occupy it.

Many persons have entered the rectory to remain all night within its bare walls and prove to the populace that the ghost theory was foolish. Some have remained all night and said they heard nothing—others have come out of the house shaken with fright, declaring they heard strange noises, that electric lights were turned off and on, and that bed clothes mysteriously disappeared.

A spiritualistic medium was once prevailed on to enter the rectory. The next morning she announced that the ghost was the spirit of a young girl who had committed suicide in the house while her father was rector. Many old residents recalled the suicide, and the belief in the ghost grew stronger.

COMMON-SENSE UTTERANCES.

President Wilson, speaking at the citizenship convention at the Wilson Normal School building in Washington yesterday reviewed the educational needs of the aliens coming to this country, and among other things said:

I have never been among those who felt comfortable in boasting of the superiority of America over other countries. The way to cure yourself of that is to travel in other countries and find out how much of nobility and character and fine enterprise there is everywhere in the world. The most that America can hope to do is to show, it may be, the finest example, not the only example of the things that ought to benefit and promote the progress of the world.

We have been disturbed recently by certain symptoms which have showed themselves in our body politic. Certain men—I have never believed a great number—born in other lands, have in recent months thought more of those lands than they have of the honor and interest of the government under which they are now living.

They have even gone so far as to draw apart in spirit and in organization from the rest of us to accomplish some special object of their own.

I am not here going to utter any criticism of these people, but I want to say this, that such a thing as that is absolutely incompatible with the fundamental idea of loyalty, and that loyalty is not a self pleasing virtue.

I am not bound to be loyal to the United States to please myself. I am bound to be loyal to the United States because I live under its laws and am its citizen, and whether it hurts me or whether it benefits me, I am obliged to be loyal.

Every man should be proud of his country, but to suppose that the land of his birth is the only spot under the special tutelage of the Creator, or the single one that is well pleasing in his sight renders the enthusiast ridiculous in the presence of others One of the most pointed fables of the ancient Greeks was aimed at this human weakness. The man and the lion were discussing politics one day when the former, in order to strengthen his assertion that man was superior to the leonine creation, pointed to a figure near by which represented a man with his foot on the neck of a prostrate lion. Leo replied by saying, "That is all well enough, but allow us to be the sculptors, and we will put the lion's paw upon the neck of the man."

NEWS OF THE DAY

Four men are dead and twenty-seven injured as the result of an explosion in the nitroglycerine mixing houses of the du Pont de Nemours smokeless powder plant at Haskel N. J., yesterday.

A little boy who was stealing a ride on a wagon in New York Wednesday dropped off when the driver lashed at him with his whip. He landed directly in front of an automobile which struck and killed him.

Fifty cases of ptomaine poisoning developed in militia camps at Nogales, Ariz., yesterday following a mess of tinned meats. Investigation showed the tins bore labels "For ... Philippine Islands 1903."

The 1916 session of the Grand Lodge of Elks adjourned in Baltmore at 5:30 o'clock last evening to meet in Boston in 1917. Already there is talk of candidates for the Grand Lodge offices in 1918 and San Antonio has entered the lists to get the convention there two years hence.

Fourteen of the seventeen defendants in the trial of labor leaders for conspiracy to extort were found guilty by a jury in Judge Steinlan's Court in Chicago yesterday. The other there were declared not guilty. Fines of $2,000 each were imposed on eight others.

An admiralty cablegram to the British embassy in Washington says positive proof has been found that the two great German dreadnoughts, Kaiser and Kromprinz, were sunk by torpedoes during the battle of Jutland, and that they now have been added to the official British list of German ships destroyed.

"Mother killed Daddy, cause he hit her lots of times." lisped little Margaret Beutinger, yesterday in telling of the killing of Christof Beutinger by his wife in their $25,000 home in New York. "She would cry, and then we would cry, too," she said. "Last week he hurt her eye so much it is all black yet. Have you seen my pretty mamma?"

The Socialist newspaper Tribune, of Amsterdam asserts that 55,000 workmen employed in munitions factories and electrical works in Berlin, and in a aerodrom at Johannisthal have gone on strike as a protest against the prison sentence imposed on Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Socialist leader, for participation in the May Day demonstration at Berlin.

President Wilson has narrowed the list of men he is considering for appointment to the Supreme Court to succeed former Justice Hughes to J. H. Clarke of Cleveland, Federal district judge, and Victor J. Dowling, Judge of the New York Supreme Court. He will make a selection within a few days, and it was indicated last night that Judge Clarke probably would be given the place.

A disurbance of considerable intensity, with a maximum wind velocity of 64 miles an hour at Charleston, is near the southern South Carolina coast, the weather bureau announced last night. Storm warnings, which were hoisted yesterday morning, were changed to hurricane warnings from Tybee Island, Ga. to Georgetown S. C. Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic coast from Jacksonville to Fortress Monroe.

A line of steamers carrying passengers from England to Norfolk, and taking passengers there for Jamaica and Panama is contemplated, according to American Consul J. S. Armstrong, jr., at Bristol, England.

After hearing a brilliant address by Lindley M. Garrison, formerly Secretary of War, in President Wilson's Cabinet, now an active member of the New York City bar, the Virginia State Bar Association convention at Old Point, adjourned yesterday afternoon. The members of the association were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cooke of Louisville, Ky., at a luncheon in the afternoon, and at night they attended the annual banquet.

That the German troops have abandoned all hope of victory, and are kept in line only by the Kaiser's iron discipline, was the declaration of a citizen of Tournay, who managed to get through the German lines yesterday. "We have the greatest confidence in the near defeat of our enemies," he said. "We see them; we speak with them, and they are going down. They have lost all hope in final victory. We have heard officers themselves criticise the Kaiser and his son."

The mean-eating shark that killed Lester Stillwell and Stanley Fisher was trapped last night in the upper reaches of Matawan Creek N. J. A barrier of chicken wire was thrown across the narrow stretch of water. Capture of the killer is expected hourly, Watchers reported the fish was accompanied by two others slightly smaller. The water where the sea raiders are imprisoned is not more than ten feet deep at high water. More than 100 pounds of dynamite has been discharged in the creek during the day in an effort to bring the great fish to the surface.

The agitation in favor of unrestricted submarine warfare continues to be conducted energetically by the press of the extreme right in Berlin. The Kreuz Zeitung publishes an article which must be taken as a manifesto of the conservative party. The article demands "that the German government, in respect to the war of submarines against commerce make use of the freedom of the decision which it reserved for itself in the note of May 4, and which has actually been conceded in a manner which amounts to a direct insult by America's answer to our enemies, abrogating the declaration of London." The article declares that the campaign proposed is "a proper and indispensable means for the rapid and victorious ending of the war".

VIRGINIA NEWS

W. D. Huntington, of the Davison Chemical Company, Baltimore, was elected yesterday vice president of the National Fertilizer Association at its annual convention at Hot Springs,. Horace Bowker, of New York, was elected president.

T. Grady Linden, 25 years old, while working on a pole at Big Stone Gap, Tuesday afternoon came in contact with a live electric light wire and was killed. He was an employe of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

Two foreign warships, said to be the British cruisers Berwick and Cumberland, are laying off the Virginia coast waiting for the German submarine Deutschland to attempt to go to sea. American torpedobat destroyers are patrolling the coast to see that the neutrality laws of the United States are not violated.

Robert J. Walker, aged 56, twice the Republican nominee for Congressman from the Seventh Virginia district, opposing first the late Congressman Smith Turner and later Congressman James Hay, died Wednesday at Mount Jackson. He was a son of the late Samuel Walker, who as a Confederate soldier, was killed in the battle of Chancellorsville.

C. Corbet Buckle, eldest son of C. E. Buckle of Charlottesville, a lieutenant in the Royal West Kent Regiment, was killed somewhere at the western battle front in Europe, on July 3. He was educated at the Episcopal High School, near Alexandria, from which institution he went to Ceylon to his uncle, Archibald Buckle, and engaged in tea and rubber growing until the outbreak of the war. He volunteered with the Ceylon Rifles and went with them to England. He was then given a lieutenant's commission in the Royal West Kent Regiment and was sent to the front last October.

President Wilson will not be required to pay for a license to hunt game in Virginia, a privilege so far extended to no other citizen. Under a new law it is necessary to secure a permit and pay a fee of $10 in order to shoot birds or other game in this State during specified seasons. President Wilson was the fifirst person to apply for a license, and he inclosed his check for $10 to pay for it. He signed the application himself. The license was granted him and it is number one on the list, showing him to be the first person to apply for one. The check for $10 was returned, and he will be permitted to hunt in any county in the State.

MUST PAY TAX ON INTEREST

In Recording Deed of Trust Law Makes Unreasonable Requirement But It Must Be Paid

State Auditor C. Lee Moore has sent out circulars to all the clerks of courts of the State, advising that the tax laws for recording deeds of trust or mortgages requires that the tax for recording be based upon the amount of bonds or other obligations secured by the deeds of trusts and mortgages, and in computing the tax the clerks must include not only the principal, but the interest, whether the interest be evidenced by obligations or not.

Mr. Moore requested the opinion from Leslie C. Garnett, Assistant Attorney General at the instance of Nelms, Colonna and McMurran, attorneys of Newport News. The question arose over the payment of taxes on the interest on promissory notes, secured by separate notes.

Mr. Garnett says the law requires that on deeds of trust or mortgages the tax shall be upon the amount of bonds or other obligations secured thereby. The interest obligation is just as much secured whether it is evidenced by separate note or not. Mr. Garnett declares, and he says where a deed of trust secures the payment of a principal sum with interest, whether or not either the principal or interest is represented by notes, both the principal and interest are to be considered as the amount secured by the deed of trust for the purpose of fixing the tax on the deed.

WANTS WAR RECORD AGAIN.

Senator Martin Wants Reprinted List of Confederates Who Succumbed in Northern Prisons.

Washington, July 14. — Senator Martin, of Virginia, introduced a bill in the Senate today authorizing the Secretary of War to reprint a complete copy of the record of deaths of Confederate soldiers and sailors, their commands, titles, etc., who died while prisoners of war from 1861 to 1865.

There is only one copy of this record, containing the names of 26,997 prisoners, in existence, and if it should be destroyed, it could not be replaced. An appropriation of $5,000 is authorized to pay the expense of the reprint.

PRAISE FOR VIRGINIA TROOPS

Far and Away Ahead of Those of Any Southern State.

Richmond, July 14.—Major J. C. Johnson, U. S. A., camp inspector, gives it as his deliberate judgment that Virginia's showing in mobolization; condition and proportion of men sent to the front is far and away ahead of that of any Southern State and compares favorably with any State.

The prices of Maxwell Cars are again reduced—$595 for the Touring Car and $580 for the Roadster are the new prices—effective July 1st, 1916. Only the price is changed—not the car.

We emphasize this point because you might well suppose that a lowered price would necessitate some changes in the Maxwellg car—somethin taken from its complete equipment—or some lowering of Maxwell standards of quality.
